MARTIN LUTHER KING JR. DAY

MONDAY, JANUARY 16TH

"I have a dream."

"I have decided to stick with love. Hate is too great a burden to bear."

"THE TIME IS ALWAYS RIGHT TO DO WHAT IS RIGHT."

"In the end, we will remember not the words of our enemies, but the silence of our friends."

*"only in the darkness
CAN YOU SEE THE STARS."*

"Life's most persistent and urgent question is,

"What are you doing for others?"

Martin Luther King Jr. (born Michael King Jr.; January 15, 1929 – April 4, 1968) was an American Baptist minister and activist, one of the most prominent leaders in the civil rights movement from 1955 until his assassination in 1968. An African American church leader and the son of early civil rights activist and minister Martin Luther King Sr., King advanced civil rights for people of color in the United States through nonviolence and civil disobedience. Inspired by his Christian beliefs and the nonviolent activism of Mahatma Gandhi, he led targeted, nonviolent resistance against Jim Crow laws and other forms of discrimination.

King participated in and led marches for the right to vote, desegregation, labor rights, and other civil rights. He oversaw the 1955 Montgomery bus boycott and later became the first president of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference (SCLC). As president of the SCLC, he led the unsuccessful Albany Movement in Albany, Georgia, and helped organize some of the nonviolent 1963 protests in Birmingham, Alabama. King was one of the leaders of the 1963 March on Washington, where he delivered his "I Have a Dream" speech on the steps of the Lincoln Memorial. The civil rights movement achieved pivotal legislative gains in the Civil Rights Act of 1964, Voting Rights Act of 1965, and the Fair Housing Act of 1968.

The SCLC put into practice the tactics of nonviolent protest with some success by strategically choosing the methods and places in which protests were carried out. There were several dramatic standoffs with segregationist authorities, who sometimes turned violent. Several times King would be jailed. Federal Bureau of Investigation (FBI) Director J. Edgar Hoover considered King a radical and made him an object of the FBI's COINTELPRO from 1963 forward. FBI agents investigated him for possible communist ties, spied on his personal life, and secretly recorded him. The FBI in 1964 mailed King a threatening anonymous letter, which he interpreted as an attempt to make him commit suicide.

On October 14, 1964, King won the Nobel Peace Prize for combating racial inequality through nonviolent resistance. In 1965, he helped organize two of the three Selma to Montgomery marches. In his final years, he expanded his focus to include opposition towards poverty, capitalism, and the Vietnam War. In 1968, King was planning a national occupation of Washington, D.C., to be called the Poor People's Campaign, when he was assassinated on April 4 in Memphis, Tennessee. His death was followed by national mourning, as well as anger leading to riots in many U.S. cities. King was posthumously awarded the Presidential Medal of Freedom in 1977 and the Congressional Gold Medal in 2003. Martin Luther King Jr. Day was established as a holiday in cities and states throughout the United States beginning in 1971; the holiday was enacted at the federal level by legislation signed by President Ronald Reagan in 1986. Hundreds of streets in the U.S. have been renamed in his honor, and the most populous county in Washington State was rededicated for him. The Martin Luther King Jr. Memorial on the National Mall in Washington, D.C., was dedicated in 2011.

2022 ARBITRATION INSTITUTE

IBEW Members from the Sixth District which covers Illinois, Indiana, Wisconsin, Michigan and Minnesota spent a long week working extended days learning how to process a grievance to arbitration. They studied preparation, research, evidence introduction, witnesses testimony and the rules that guide arbitration hearings. About thirty IBEW members from the Midwest attended the classes starting Monday December 5th, including Local 15 Stewards Arturo Saldivar, Nick Creen, and Dave Rivera. The Arbitration Institute at the University of Illinois Urbana-Champaign has been hosted by the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers Sixth District since the 1970s. Thousands of Electrical Workers have benefitted from the training.

The students were evenly divided between labor and management roles and assigned cases. Each student on every case had a role as an employee, supervisor, witness, Union representative or management. The teams intentionally included members from different local unions so that working with new people was an added lesson. The groups put on a mock arbitration hearings in front of a professional Arbitrator and University staff on Friday the 9th. The first case concerned contract interpretation and the second hearing was a grievance protesting a discharge. The burden of proof is put on the Union in contract interpretation cases but that onus falls on the company in discipline cases. Most labor agreements have a grievance resolution process to settle contract differences between unionized employees and management. Both sides agree to a method to settle disputes without workers striking to protest or management locking out workers to force their terms. Generally, companies want to continue business and employees want to keep working while the grievance is argued through the process. Employers retained total control and refused to agree to let an impartial party decide disputes for decades. Arbitration was used in negotiations (interest arbitration) through the first third of the twentieth century when uninterrupted productivity was in the national interest during World War I. Grievance arbitration grew during World War II to also maintain military equipment production.

The majority of contracts use arbitration as the ultimate step to settle unresolved grievances. An independent neutral arbitrator, or a panel of independent arbitrators, may be called to decide the proper remedy for a grievance after hearing the arguments from both sides. An arbitrator's authority is generally limited to interpret, apply or enforce the labor agreement, the Arbitrator has no power to add to, subtract from, modify or delete any provision of the labor agreement. The arbitrator's decision is legally final and binding on both sides.

2022 IBEW NUCLEAR CONFERENCE

Electrical Workers met to review the nuclear generation industry at the IBEW Annual Nuclear Conference in New Orleans, November 5th through November 8th. Local 15 V.P Ben Busser, Business Rep. Brian Daniels, Stewards Brian Johnson, Phil Gould, Jose Garza, Robb Reynolds, Mitch Zemanek, Jason Cooper attended the wide ranging sessions.

IBEW Director of Utility Department Brian Thompson kicked off the conference after a 2 year absence due to Covid Restrictions. Updates were given on the new wave of dependency on the nuclear industry and the Inflation Reduction Act that was passed in 2022.

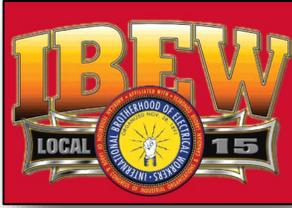

The United States Nuclear Regulatory Commissioner Jeff Baran spoke to members of Nuclear Stations starting license renewals, the future possibilities of small modular reactors, and had a question and answer session with the attending IBEW members.

Steve Swilley, VP and Deputy Chief Nuclear Officer of Electric Power Research Institute (EPRI) held a presentation of Advanced Nuclear, Small Modular Reactors and Strategic Development. The strategy being discussed is to place these small modular reactors on sites that have closed fossil generating stations. The infrastructure is already in place with the transmission equipment, as well as cooling water on the sites. The biggest asset is the experienced power plant technicians that could operate and maintain this generation that otherwise would be displaced.

Mr. William H. Starr
President and Business Manager
Local Union 15, I.B.E.W.
1333 Butterfield Road, Suite 280
Downers Grove, IL 60515

Dear Mr. Starr:

With winter around the corner, it is time to review the Company policies regarding the treatment of employee pay on basic work days on which a severe winter storm might occur and management declares a "snow day".

As you know, it is Company policy that employees should always be on time for work and when bad weather is likely to occur, employees should allow more time to get to work by leaving home earlier than usual.

Management recognizes it may be difficult to, even impossible to, arrive at work on time as a result of extremely hazardous conditions and roads made impassable by a heavy snowstorm. When a snow day occurs, employees who cannot get to work at all will be given the option of either taking a vacation day or the day off without pay. Employees who do report to their work locations for work during their basic work day, but are late, despite taking every precaution and making every effort to be on time, will be paid for the day.

You might want to use this information for your own communications with your members.

Sincerely,

Richard J. Landy
Vice President, HR and Administration

Very truly yours,

J. P. Sanders
Director of Labor Relations

Care Center IVR Issues

On December 1st, ComEd's call center (the Care Center) experienced issues with its IVR (Interactive Voice Response) system. This system not only takes basic inquiries but also directs calls thru prompts to available Customer Service Representatives. It went down and the Care Center went 3-4 hours without receiving any calls. Besides the call center, it impacted all of Exelon's operating companies and other companies supported by this vendor. To resolve the issue, the company made the decision to activate the vendor's business continuity plan which is in place for any system-wide failures. The plan allowed some customer prompts such as outage and emergency requests to work and if chosen would route you to a CSR. If a customer pressed any other prompts a graceful response was given that their call would be unable to be taken at this time due to technical difficulties and to call back later. The switch to the plan allowed some calls to come through but calls were still going unanswered, and the call quality was poor with either difficulties hearing customers or them hearing the CSR. The company had been planning to change IVR vendors starting next year but decided to engage them and see if they could improve the current situation and call quality. They immediately saw a marked improvement and it also allowed them to have a better control of getting more calls to the CSR's. They also opened on that Saturday and Sunday to take all calls. Our CSR's have stepped up and immediately shifted gears dropping everything in their personal lives to accommodate the extended hours and working multiple 16-hour days. The call center leadership and Exelon's IT department have been working to resolve the issue but currently there is no estimated time for a resolution.

Constellation to Seek License Extensions for Two of its Nuclear Plants in Illinois

The Dresden and Clinton plants, which were saved from early retirement by supportive state and federal policies, are now seeking approval to operate 20 more years.

Constellation, the nation's largest producer of carbon-free energy, said it will ask the Nuclear Regulatory Commission (NRC) to extend the operating licenses of its Clinton and Dresden nuclear power plants in Illinois by an additional 20 years. The extension means the two plants will contribute billions of additional dollars to Illinois' economy and continue providing enough carbon-free energy to power the equivalent of more than 2 million homes, helping the state meet its goal to get 100 percent of its energy from clean sources by 2050. If approved by the NRC, Clinton could operate until 2047 and Dresden could operate until 2049 (Unit 2) and 2051 (Unit 3).

The continued operation of the two zero-carbon plants is enabled by state and federal legislation that recognizes the unique environmental and economic value of nuclear energy. Clinton and Dresden, along with three other Illinois plants, receive credits under two state laws that prevented the plants' early retirement and preserved the clean energy they provide.

In addition, the federal Inflation Reduction Act (IRA) passed in August includes a nuclear production tax credit that will help support continued operation of the nation's nuclear fleet for at least nine years. Market forces and the continuation of supportive energy policies will play an ongoing role in the ability of the plants to operate for the duration of the extended licenses.

"To get to zero emissions in Illinois and nationally, we will need to operate every carbon-free resource we have for as long as we possibly can," said Joe Dominguez, President and CEO of Constellation. "With these extensions, Clinton and Dresden will further demonstrate the capability of nuclear assets to provide always-on clean energy when and where it is needed for decades to come, which is a testament to their unique value in addressing the climate crisis. We credit the Illinois policymakers, members of Congress and other stakeholders who worked so hard to preserve these zero-carbon resources, and who can be proud of their role in supporting clean, reliable energy and contributing to our nation's energy security."

The two plants are safer, more efficient, and more reliable today than the day they were built as a result of continuous investment in new equipment and preventive maintenance conducted during regular refueling outages every 18 months to two years. Over the past 10 years, Clinton and Dresden have had average run-times of 93 percent and nearly 95 percent, respectively, making them among the most reliable energy sources on the grid. Clinton is currently licensed to operate through April 2027 and produces clean electricity for the equivalent of more than 800,000 homes in central Illinois. Dresden powers the equivalent of more than 1.3 million homes in northern Illinois and is currently licensed to operate until 2029 (Unit 2) and 2031 (Unit 3), after receiving its first NRC license renewal in 2004. Constellation expects to file both license applications with the NRC in 2024. In addition to producing reliable, carbon-free energy, Clinton and Dresden are economic engines for the state. Based on an independent analysis completed in 2021 when the Climate and Equitable Jobs Act was enacted, Dresden and Clinton are expected to contribute approximately $1 billion and $550 million per year, respectively, to state GDP.

More than 540 Constellation employees work at the Clinton facility and more than 700 work at Dresden. The two plants combined pay nearly $40 million annually in property taxes to support local schools, fire departments and other government services. The potential license extensions have been met with overwhelming support from elected leaders and public officials.
